

THE AMERICAN MERCURY AUTHORS

ARLINGTON B. CONWAY served on the staff of a Canadian brigade throughout the late war, and has since devoted himself to military studies.

CHESTER T. CROWELL was born in Cleveland, O. He was reared in Texas, and began newspaper work there. At various times he was staff correspondent for the San Antonio Express, the Houston Post, and the Dallas and Galveston News. He was managing editor of the Austin Statesman. He lived several years in the City of Mexico, where he was news editor of the Mexican Herald. He gave up newspaper work temporarily in 1918 and came to New York. He returned to journalism in 1923 as an editorial writer for the New York Evening Post.

MORRIS FISHBEIN, M.D., is associate editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association; is a member of the faculty of the Rush Medical College; and is the joint author, with Dr. Oliver T. Osborne, of a standard handbook of therapy.

ALBERT LÉON GUÉRARD was born in Paris and now lives in Texas. He is the author of a standard work on artificial languages, and of many other books, including the recently published "Reflections on the Napoleonic Legend."

MELVILLE J. HERSKOVITS, Ph.D. (Columbia) took his degree in anthropology, and is at present engaged upon the problem of variability under racial crossing. He is a frequent contributor to scientific journals.

MARY ALDEN HOPKINS was educated at Wellesley College and Columbia University and has been employed in various industrial investigations. She was born in Bangor, Maine, and lives in Summer on a Connecticut farm and in Winter in New York City.

L. M. HUSSEY is a chemist and pharmacologist of wide experience. He lives in Philadelphia.

GEORGE PHILIP KRAPP, Ph.D. (Johns Hopkins), is professor of English at Columbia University. He is editor of the Oxford English Series and the author of half a dozen works on English.

THOMAS OLLIVE MABBOTT, Ph.D. (Columbia) is assistant in English at Columbia. He has edited "Letters from George W. Eveleth to Poe" and "Poe's 'Politician.'" He has been a lecturer at the University of Chicago.

GREGORY MASON was for a number of years connected with the Outlook. He is well known as a writer on public affairs. He has lectured extensively in the United States.

FRED LEWIS PATTEE, Litt.D., is the author of "A History of American Literature Since 1870" and of various other works in that field. He is at present at the University of Illinois.

MARGARET SANGER is internationally known as an advocate of Birth Control. She was one of the organizers of the International Conference on Population Problems held in London in 1922. She is the author of "Woman and the New Race" and "The Pivot of Civilization," editor of the Birth Control Review, and president of the American Birth Control League.

JAMES STEVENS is the author of "The Uplift on the Frontier," which appeared in the April number of THE AMERICAN MERCURY. He has worked as a laborer in the Northwest for many years. At present he is employed in a lumber mill at Bend, Oregon.

CHARLES WILLIS THOMPSON has been writing on politics for nearly thirty years. He has represented the New York World and Times at Washington.

A first novel by
RUTH SUCKOW
COUNTRY PEOPLE

Ruth Suckow, well known to readers of THE MERCURY, has here written a first novel of Iowan farm life that has the simplicity and poignancy of truth. It is with the authority of an intimate knowledge that she has chronicled the daily round of three generations of German-Americans, into whose cautious but prosaic movements creeps the struggle of the younger generation to keep pace with progress. Country People will not disappoint her many admirers.

H. L. MENCKEN writes of Miss Suckow:

"Regarding Miss Suckow's future accomplishment I have no doubt whatever. She will write, within the limits of her interest, absolutely first-rate stuff, and soon or late—probably very soon, it will be recognized. Her stories are wholly devoid of the cheap cleverness that passes for brilliance in the popular magazines. There is nothing bright and shiny about them. But when one of them is read the impression it leaves behind is unforgettably vivid. It is almost perfect as representation, and under the representation there is always feeling. Miss Suckow, in other words, is no mere photographer; she is an artist—and I think she is one of the finest artists we have."

Music and Music-lovers now have a magazine of their own!

MUSIC is different in conception, design and purpose from every other music publication.

It is not a journal of heavy, esoteric treatises. It is not a newspaper. It is not a review of music reviews.

MUSIC not only refuses to be technical or didactic—it insists upon being entertaining. Having achieved this, it is quite willing to be informative, in the most authoritative fashion. It is occasionally, and with complete abandon, gossipy. Its absolute independence of all obligations (except to its readers) permits it to indulge in satire to any degree of pungency, or in artless bursts of panegyric enthusiasm, according to its mood and without respect to the opinions of mankind.

The list of MUSIC'S editors attests the position it occupies in the music world.

The first issue is now ready and will be sent as a complimentary extra-subscription number to those who return the coupon below—their regular subscription year will begin with the second (October) number, to be published in September.

[Yearly subscription price, $4.00; in Canada, $4.50; in foreign countries, $5.00. To be published monthly from September, 1924.]

MUSIC,

Suite 303, 312 Fifth Ave., New York.

With the understanding that I shall receive a copy of your first issue entirely without charge, I enclose my check (or money order) for $..... in payment for a year's subscription to begin with the October number.

The most amusing book yet published this year

THE SQUIRE'S
HOME-MADE WINES
as describ'd and set-forth in the JOURNAL of
THOMAS HOGGSON, Gent., 1765.

The edition is strictly limited and numbered. The book is printed by the Pynson Printers on a hand-made French Glaslan paper, bound in blind-tooled paper boards, and is enclosed in a slip-case with paper label. Quite apart from the interest of the subject matter the book is distinctly worth while as a literary and bibliographical "stunt," and as a delightful and very amusing specimen of book-making.

The price is five dollars.

~beauty in a bewitching frame

SHE has made her mirror a magic thing—a tribute to beauty and an inspiration to youth.

She has found the secret to colorful hair—hair like sunlit waves. This the beauty recorded in the mythology of the gods—the color which lavishes a triumph of expression; a charm that creates exquisite enchantment, so alluring, so intoxicating. Whether in parlor or drawing room, grand ball-room or baronial hall, the splendour of golden hair is as fascinating as a crown of jewels.

Such is beauty; beauty that urges renewed spirits to gay vivacity.

But colorful hair, the true servitor of beauty, is no longer an elusive quest, thanks to the genius of the Parisienne, Dr. Charles Marchand, Graduate, Ecole Centrale des Arts et Manufactures de Paris.

Just a few extra moments at your toilette, and behold! beauty in a bewitching frame.

CTUALLY out of the vision of a poor artist, Frederick Thompson, was born Greater Luna Park of Greater New York—a famed playground entwined in a setting unequalled in a decade as an architectural extravaganza. But there is something more that ever dominates all. Above the clustered towers, spires and minarets; the palaces of wit and jest; the spectacles of the unconventional; the marts of thrills and illusions; and the byways of fantasy and satire, there is perpetuated a human pillar of a lofty ideal—an ideal that first found its expression in a mother's counsel to her son, "Play to the mothers and children. They are the ones who run the world."

*An excerpt from
"The Ideals and History of Greater Luna Park,"
by C. H. Yalden*

"The Sweetmeats of Kings," truly a phrase that is merited by the praises which have echoed down the ancestral halls of the royal households of the world; and by that supreme achievement of the master bakers' art, the wedding cake made for H. R. H., The Duke of York, K. C., and His Bride.
