WE OFFER this bargain to Forum readers because we want you to see for yourselves how Survey Graphic's factual approach to social and economic subjects broadens your understanding of our times and how it helps you form sound opinions.

In what other magazine could you expect to find the following stimulating articles — an investigation of all the facts behind Nebraska's ballyhoo of itself as a haven for tax-ridden industry — an appraisal of congressional investigations as fact-finders and moulders of public opinion — a discussion of the perils that lurk in modern American plumbing and the reasons why remedial legislation is not enacted — the case history of a union charted from the sit-downs of 1936 to the layoffs of 1938 — an assessment of the events which mark labor's new attempt to bargain with the electorate — a forecast of the direction and importance of the latest motion-picture development, documentary films — a study of the nationally significant struggle between the Group Health Association of Washington, D. C. and the local medical society — a searching inquiry into the committee system as an aid to legislative bodies.

In a single issue of what other magazine could you find full length articles by H. G. Wells, Stuart Chase, William Allen White, Dr. Douglass W. Orr, Henrik Willem Van Loon, Paul Kellogg, Beulah Amidon, Otto Neurath, Walton H. Hamilton, C. A. Dykstra, Victor Weybright, Leon Whipple, and John Palmer Gavit? These distinguished writers contribute frequently to Survey Graphic — all contributed to a recent issue.

Survey Graphic has no axe to grind, no theory to support, no political affiliation. During the past year its circulation has advanced 17%. Today you may well ask yourself whether you can afford — at any price — to be without the magazine David Cushman Coyle calls "the only authentic and readable current source of American social facts." At this price you need not be without it:

WILLIAM OLIVER STEVENS was born in Rangoon, Burma, of American missionary parents, and came to this country at the age of 8. He studied at Yale and later taught at the Naval Academy at Annapolis for 21 years. He is the author of History of Sea Power.

SYLVIA STEVENSON, English author of four novels (The Flowering Aloe was the last), has been traveling busily and writing articles for the past year or so. Writing from the Channel Island of Sark, last August, she said she expected to go to Hungary in the fall to collect material for another book.

EMILY NEWELL BLAIR, an old FORUM contributor, has recently published a number of articles about the Oxford Group.

The ANONYMOUS author of "They Said I Was Mad!" had a nurse's training before the war and later served as worker with refugee children in France. In more recent years she has done fashion designing and newspaper fashion work and held a secretarial position.

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE, the English actress who delighted New York audiences last winter in Susan and God, went on tour with the play in August.

FRANK J. TAYLOR began a career in journalism in California, served as a war correspondent in Europe, and worked for a number of Eastern newspapers after the war. Since 1924 he has been an advertising writer and also is the author of many books and magazine articles.

CHRISTINE H. STURGEON is an American at present living in Scotland, where her husband is doing research work at the University of Edinburgh. She is a keen student of international affairs and active in the work of numerous groups striving to promote international order.

JOHN A. MCAFEE, born in Missouri, spent five years in business in Kansas and then entered the Presbyterian ministry. Now, 21 years later, he has a pastorate in Maryville, Tennessee, and also teaches sociology in Maryville College.

MARQUIS W. CHILDS is widely known as a Washington correspondent for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and as author of Sweden: the Middle Way.

JAMES V. BENNETT, after army service during the war, was appointed Assistant Investigator in the United States Bureau of Efficiency. Later he was a member of the Personnel Classification Board and, finally, of the Bureau of Prisons, of which he is now Director.

SIDNEY W. DEAN, onetime managing editor of the Boston Herald and veteran of a career on trade magazines, has made cooking a hobby for years. His talents, which serve him as an expert adviser to publications in the luncheonette and soda-fountain industry, will be spread soon in A Man in the Kitchen.

J. GEORGE FREDERICK is a writer, business economist, and publisher—the author of many books on business and economics, including A Philosophy of Production, Readings in Economic Planning, and A Primer of New Deal Economics.

CHARLES HANSON TOWNE, having edited several popular magazines, is now free lancing and, he claims, enjoying it more. He occasionally takes on a few lecture dates and taught a class in English poetry at Columbia University last summer.

GEORGE B. ANDERSON spent his summers during college years touring the Middle West as "the man with the X-ray eyes" and in a vaudeville act called "Exposing the Medium." He has been in newspaper work on the advertising side for some years and occasionally writes magazine fiction.

WILLIAM L. PROSSER is professor of law at the University of Minnesota Law School. Formerly in private practice, he has specialized in recent years in the law of torts and is editor in chief of the Minnesota Law Review.

ERNEST LUNDEEN, another Minnesota lawyer, first held political office in 1910, when he was elected to the Minnesota House of Representatives. He was elected to a seat in the United States Senate in 1937.

MILLARD E. TYDINGS was the subject of a largely laudatory article in THE FORUM, by Oswald Garrison Villard, in December, 1936. Senator Tydings, who has held a seat in the upper chamber since 1927 and was re-elected this fall, lives in Havre de Grace, Maryland.

MARY M. COLUM, after a summer spent abroad, chiefly in Paris, studying under a Guggenheim fellowship, has returned to New York City for the winter.

ROBERT H. JACKSON, a native of Jamestown, New York, is Solicitor General of the United States and for several years has been a prominent leader and adviser in Administration circles in Washington.

LOUISE M. NEUSCHUTZ organized the first evening class in lip reading for hard-of-hearing adults in the public schools of Manhattan. Her present article will form part of a book she is completing, for the instruction of deafened persons.

ROGER WILLIAM RIES served in the Office of Naval Intelligence during the War and later was a newspaperman and magazine editor. His present work is in the public-relations field. He is a director of the American Civil Liberties Union.

OTTO H. KAHN, the late noted financier, was buried in Memorial Cemetery, at Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, at his death in 1934. Dr. Samuel H. Golden-son, of Temple Emanu-El, conducted his funeral services at that time.

To People who want to write but can't get started—but

Do you have the constant urge to write but the fear that a beginner hasn't a chance? Then listen to what Fulton Oursler, editor of Liberty, has to say on the subject:

"There is more room for newcomers in the writing field today—and especially in Liberty Magazine—than ever before. Some of the greatest of writing men and women have passed from the scene in recent years. Who will take their places? Who will be the new Robert W. Chambers, Edgar Wallace, Rudyard Kipling, and many others whose work we have published? It is also true that more people are trying to write than ever before, but talent is still rare and the writer still must learn his craft, as few of the newcomers nowadays seem willing to do. Fame, riches and the happiness of achievement await the new men and women of power."

"I am able to live on the money I earn by writing, and it is not yet ten months since I began the course! Until a few months after beginning study with you I had never had a line published. What more can I say for a course which has enabled me to earn a livelihood by the most congenial work I have ever done?"
John N. Ottum, Jr., Box 95, Lisbon, N. D.

THE Newspaper Institute of America offers a free Writing Aptitude Test. Its object is to discover new recruits for the army of men and women who add to their income by fiction and article writing.

The Writing Aptitude Test is a simple but expert analysis of your latent ability, your powers of imagination, logic, etc. All applicants do not pass this test. Those who do are qualified to take the famous N. I. A. course based on the practical training given by big metropolitan dailies.

This is the New York Copy-Desk Method which teaches you to write by writing! You develop your individual manner instead of trying to copy the style of others.

You "cover" actual assignments such as metropolitan reporters get. Although you work at home, on your own time, you are constantly guided by experienced newspaper men.

It is really fascinating work. Each week you see new progress. In a matter of months you can acquire the coveted "professional" touch. Then you're ready for market with greatly improved chances of making sales.
