The Brooklyn Ethical Association

For the season 1893-4 this Association will present to its members and the public a course of lectures on the general subject, "Life and the Conditions of Survival: The Physical Basis of Ethics, Sociology, and Religion." The lectures are to be printed, and advance subscriptions will be received at $1 for the volume. The Association's meeting-place is at the Second Unitarian Church, corner of Clinton and Congress Streets, Brooklyn. The topics of the lectures are as follows:

Cosmic Evolution, as Related to Ethics, by Dr. Lewis G. Janes, President of the Association. October 29, 1893.
Solar Energy, by Mr. A. Emerson Palmer. November 12.
The Atmosphere, by Dr. Robert G. Eccles. November 26.
Water, by Rossiter W. Raymond, Ph.D. December 10.
Food, by Professor W. O. Atwater. December 24.
Structural Variations, by Professor E. D. Cope. January 14, 1894.
Locomotion, by Dr. Martin L. Holbrook. January 28.
Labor as a Factor in Evolution, by Dr. David A. Gorton. February 11.
Protective Covering, by Mrs. Lizzie Cheney Ward. February 25.
Shelter, by Mr. Z. Sidney Sampson. March 11.
Habit, by the Rev. John W. Chadwick. March 25.
Sanitation, by Mr. James A. Skilton. April 8.
Philanthropy, by the Rev. John C. Kimball. April 22.
Religion, by the Rev. Edward P. Powell, author of "Our Heredity from God," etc. April 29.

These lectures will be repeated in New York City, on Sunday evenings succeeding the dates above given, at the Church of the Messiah, Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue.

CHURCHES AND ORGANISTS

LISZT ORGAN. Style 804.

This new and improved model is attracting wide attention among church committees and organists. It is decidedly superior to small pipe organs, and unquestionably the most perfect instrument of its class. Send for catalogue.

Signs of Health.

You don't have to look twice to detect them—bright eyes, bright color, bright smiles, bright in every action.

Disease is overcome only when weak tissue is replaced by the healthy kind. Scott's Emulsion of cod liver oil effects cure by building up sound flesh. It is agreeable to taste and easy of assimilation.

Some Newspaper English

A young man, desiring to become a reporter on the daily press, received the following suggestions from an old-timer to whom he applied for professional tips.

"In rescuing drowning men, it must always be when they are going down for the third time. No case is on record of a rescue when the sufferer was going down the first time.

"When a gentleman gives a bank-note it must always be a 'crisp' five-dollar or ten-dollar one.

"Thuds are of two descriptions, the 'dull' and the 'sickening.'

"Of course every writer knows that fire must always be mentioned as the 'devouring element.'

"What 'wildfire' is no one exactly knows, but when anything spreads rapidly, remember it 'spreads like wildfire.'

"Flags, especially political ones, must always be 'flung to the breeze,' no matter whether there is any breeze or not; fling it—do not unfurl it.

"If you can manage to get an assault, a dog-fight, and a burglary all into one column, do it, for it will secure the alliterative scare-head of 'A Carnival of Crime.'

"Speaking of winning or losing money, it must always be a 'cool' 500 or 5,000. However heated the struggle, the amount must always be 'cool.'

"Always remember that a man is 'launched into eternity,' not hanged at a certain time.

"When a person after an accident is found to be dead, it is best not to say so, but that 'the vital spark has fled.'

"Speeches on the political side which your paper advocates should always be 'ringing' speeches."—Boston Bulletin.

Historic Houses

Now that "The Terrace" in Kensington is down or doomed, says the London "Westminster Gazette," it seems every house in it once sheltered a celebrity. And yet scarcely any one knew anything about it. It is always the way with historic houses. The "link with the past" paragraph is the first intimation that the past was memorable. When the interest is with us, we don't know it. The Society of Arts has indeed singled out and decorated certain houses—Walpole's, in Arlington Street; Dryden's, in Gerrard Street; Mrs. Siddons's, at the top of Baker Street; Louis Napoleon's, in King Street; Thackeray's, in Palace Green—but we want many more to be ascertained and notified.

The house where Thackeray wrote "Vanity Fair" is said still to stand in Young Street. One of Dickens's last residences is opposite the Marble Arch; the house where Goldsmith lived and died is in Brick Court, Temple; Charles Wesley's house and William Blake's house can yet be identified. While we have these we don't value them; we don't care to identify them. But when the navy comes with his basket and his pickaxe, the "link with the past" paragraph goes its round.

In other capitals the great man's memory runs no risk. In Rome there is a marble plaque on the house Sir Walter Scott occupied; in Genoa, on O'Connell's hotel; in Florence, on Mrs. Browning's casa; in Frankfurt, on Mozart's lodgings in the Zeil. And yet these are the several recognitions of a foreign interest. We cannot even appreciate our own. The truth is, this duty should devolve upon a responsible and continuing body, the Board of Works or the County Council, and not be left to the voluntary effort of a private association like the Society of Arts.

Life on a Light-Ship

Talk about rolling and pitching! No vessel rolls, pitches, and plunges like a light-ship. Its anchors hold it firm to the shock of the waves. There is no yielding, no graceful swaying to the swelling of the seas. There are days, too, when a fierce fog-horn torments the ear with a noise such as Nature in her angriest moods never invented. There is always a glare of light at night. There is no constant expectation of reaching port, and life soon becomes a dreary monotony.

In case the light-ship should be cast adrift, it has been fitted with sails which will enable it to hold its own in storm and stress. The hold is fitted with spacious storerooms and sleeping-quarters, and a machine for compressing the air which blows the fog-horn. These fog-horns are what are known in this country as "siren" whistles. They are called sirens probably because that is what they least resemble. They begin their noise with a very low note, and rise rapidly in a sliding scale to a very thin high note that distresses the ear. Then they descend to the low note, and up and down in rapid succession the shrieking, demonlike noises race. One French writer has said that the possibilities of this fog-horn are such that he wonders that some music-leader has not introduced it in the orchestra when the Wagner operas are played. A compressed-air trumpet, he thinks—and it is just possible that there may be a little national prejudice in his opinion—would go well with mythological characters and dragons and unearthly storms and noises. This writer says the fog-horn is simply a "terrible instrument," and therefore in time the Wagnerians must adopt it. A big bell is placed on the ship for use in case the fog-horn should break down or scare itself useless.—Harper's Young People.

Hideous Advertisements

It is said that a salmon, when quite devoid of appetite, may be worried into taking a fly, if only flies be presented to him with irritating pertinacity. "Hang it!" he exclaims, "I cannot be troubled with this Jock Scott any longer"—he makes an irritable snap at it, and is lost.

Possibly in the same way persons are driven nearly wild by seeing this or that commodity thrust on their notice in railway stations, in trains, in the streets, in the fields, on the top of Ben Macdhui. They may purchase a sample in despair, may like it and go on using it. This may be the theory of frantic and hideous advertisements, but, on the whole, it might seem more likely to work its own destruction.—Saturday Review.

You may be an excellent servant in many ways, but you say you don't use Pearl-line for washing and cleaning—you can't be bright. My poor girl, soap takes up your time and wears out the things with the rubbing. No, you're not bright enough for me." Well, the lady is bright, to say the least. Evidently she has had the best of teachers—experience. Have you? "Yes!"—then you use Pearl-line. "No!"—then you had best begin at once. Ask some friend about Pearl-line. 393

Get Macbeth's "pearl top" and "pearl glass" lamp-chimneys; they are made of tough glass, tough against heat; they do not break in use; they do from accident.

They are clear, transparent, not misty. Look at your chimney. How much of the light is lost in the fog?

Be willing to pay a little more.
