DIRECTIONS

To solve this puzzle you must guess twenty-five words, the definitions of which are given in the column headed DEFINITIONS. The letters in each word to be guessed are numbered. These numbers appear under the dashes in the column headed WORDS. There is a dash for each letter in the required word. The key letters in the squares are for convenience, indicating to which word in the definitions each letter in the diagram belongs. When you have guessed a word, fill it in on the dashes; then write each letter in the correspondingly numbered square on the puzzle diagram. When the squares are all filled in you will find (by reading from left to right) a quotation from a famous author. Reading up and down the letters mean nothing. The black squares indicate ends of words; therefore words do not necessarily end at the right side of the diagram.

When the column headed WORDS is filled in, the initial letters spell the name of the author and the title of the piece from which the quotation has been taken. Authority for spelling and definitions is Webster's New International Dictionary (1938 edition).

The solution of last week's Double Crostic will be found on page 16 of this issue.

You Be The Judge

By ERNEST MORTENSON

And ALAIN of the New Yorker gives élan with over 50 apt drawings

First Reviews Say:

CHICAGO TRIBUNE: "If you think that an out-size book 450 pages long about the law is something you should leave to somebody else to read, you'll be doing yourself out of one of the most illuminating evenings of your reading life... as interesting as you found that first eye-opening doctor book."

N. Y. POST: "Clear, amusing and authoritative... as much fun to read it as it is to play a parlor game. 'You Be The Judge' abounds with all sorts of examples of the law and its offshoots, some astonishing, some very funny."

NEW YORK SUN: "Written in the language which every normally intelligent person understands... explains all manner of laws, both civil and criminal."

N. Y. WORLD-TELEGRAM: "A good-natured attempt to let us helpless ones behind the scenes... provides a vast number of specific cases and... outlines difficult situations in contracts, misuse of name, property ownership, leases, divorce actions, insurance, wills, etc.—matters that affect the lives of most of us."

South American Excursion

Mr. Young, a noted geographer, travelled with knowledge, humor, a keen eye and a sharp ear and plainly delights himself and all readers with a travel book in the true line of Stevenson's Travels With a Donkey.

Hotel in Flight

By NANCY JOHNSTONE

"A first rate book."—The New Yorker.

"An intensely live and interesting book... The characters are appealing and alive, the whole record is worth reading as a small but pertinent contribution to real history."

—N. Y. Times Book Review $3.00

"WHAT this book does is to make the law and its everyday processes understandable to the man-in-the-street. This it does with marked success, by telling the story of concrete cases from the judicial records—setting forth the facts with all their human interest aspects, putting the reader in the place of the parties, then taking him by the hand and leading him through the successive stages of litigation, and then showing him the result. Thus the author unveils the apparent mysteries of the law, but lets the layman see their reasonableness. The layman, while he discovers the complexity and range of the everyday subjects of litigation, yet realizes that these stages and processes are natural and reasonable. He ought thus, if he reads this book, to become a more useful citizen and a more manageable client."

"Nor is the book systemless. Though it hangs all principles on concrete cases, yet it arranges the sequence so as to cover pretty well all the everyday subjects that come to the layman's notice. After a preliminary story-case that shows how a lawsuit begins, goes on, and ends, the book takes up, in successive chapters, Torts, Property, Crime, International Law, Domestic Relations, Contracts (with Bills and Notes and Insurance), Wills, Federal Law and Proof:—always starting the exposition with one or more story-cases."

"The idea of the book's method is ingenious; its competent exposition has long been awaited; and the lay public (as well as the legal profession) ought to welcome it heartily."—John H. Wigmore, Northwestern University.

First Readers Say:

MORRIS ERNST: "A really delightful book, entertaining, informative—the book I would recommend to clients and lawyers."

HARRY ELMER BARNES: "Absorbing and practical introduction to the mysterious ways of the law and courts. Valuable to the man on the street as it is interesting to all."

LINDSAY ROGERS: "This book written for the layman should be of absorbing interest and is not without value for the lawyer as well."

JAMES P. GIFFORD: "Clear, accurate, interesting and entertaining. An unusual combination for a book on Law. Laymen and lawyers should buy and read it."

GEORGE GORDON BATTLE: "Interesting and extraordinary... The persons and the situations that appear in the pages of YOU BE THE JUDGE are peculiarly vivid and picturesque... These qualities, together with a pervading but restrained sense of humor, make the book the most delightful reading."

A National Garden Salon Bouquets and Bitters

A Gardener's Medley
By JULIAN R. MEADE

"Delightful and savory."—Dorothy Canfield Fisher.

"One of the most delightful books on gardening I have ever read."—Louis Bromfield

"Even if you do not have a garden, you'll enjoy the things he says about people who have gardens."—N. Y. Her. Trib. "Books"

"You'll relish every word of his gossipy, informal, odds-and-ends volume."—San Francisco Chronicle.

"Wholly different, brisk, breezy, tangy... A series of delightful excursions, as literary as they are horticultural, a book of contacts with distinguished garden lovers, poets, novelists, artists, motion picture stars—salted with humor, peppered with opinion, finely flavored and readable."—Dallas News
