"Sun" Chalet in Glacier Park

We're going to see THE Pacific Northwest

● For years we've wanted to go and now that it costs so little we're going—to Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma and Portland. We'll visit Mt. Rainier National Park and Mt. Baker National Forest. We may sail from Seattle to Alaska, and we'll certainly take the Logan Pass Detour through Glacier National Park. While train and Pullman fares are so low on the Empire Builder we can't afford to miss this visit to the Pacific Northwest.

*Take that Western trip this summer
... never before so cheap*

Great Northern offers rail and Pullman fares too low to ignore. See Glacier National Park from the Logan Pass Detour en route to Pacific Northwest, Alaska, California and other National Parks. In all the world no trip like this. See nearest Great Northern agent or write A. J. Dickinson, P. T. M., Room 726, Great Northern Railway Bldg., St. Paul.

BEHIND THE SCENES

WITH SCRIBNER AUTHORS

Louis M. Hacker was born in New York City in 1899 and was educated at Columbia, where he studied particularly history and economics. The author of "The Incendiary Mahan" is a non-academic historian who believes that the writer of American history should "know his economics and international relations as well as his national and political affairs. In a sense, he typifies a return to the middle period of American historical writing when history was the work of non-professionals." The difference is that, unlike them, he is a hard-working editor and journalist who writes for a living. He is assistant editor of the Encyclopædia of the Social Sciences and writes articles for a number of journals and magazines. He is at present at work on a book covering the period 1890-1917. With B. B. Kendrick he wrote The United States Since 1865 and he is also the author of a John Day pamphlet The Farmer is Doomed. According to his own statement he "does not golf, play tennis or take long walks; has no hobbies; belongs to no clubs or societies for social betterment." He has one son, aged four.

The author of "If Judges Wrote Detective Stories" is deeply rooted in the law. John Barker Waite's grandfather was Chief Justice of the State of Connecticut; his uncle, Chief Justice of the United States; and his father, a judge on the county bench and in active practice in Toledo for exactly fifty years. He himself was graduated from Yale and took his law degree at the University of Michigan. He practised law for five years in Toledo and then went to teach it at Ann Arbor and has been ever since. For ten years he was editor of The Michigan Law Review. He is a member of the American Law Institute and its Advisory Committee on a Model Criminal Code. He is a member of the State Bar Association and chairman of its Committee on Criminal Justice. In 1927 he devoted several months to the problems and methods of the police in London, Paris, and Berlin, and has spent many years in close touch with the police organization of Detroit and has had occasional contacts with those in Chicago, New York, and Cleveland. When he discusses police methods and restrictions and suggests reforms, he knows his ground thoroughly.

Although Bernard Iddings Bell is now a canon of St. John's Cathedral in Providence, R. I., to those who heard him speak in various college chapels throughout the country when he was warden of St. Stephen's College, he will always carry the title "Dean" Bell, which is the name they know him by. He sums himself up: "For twenty-three years I've been a priest of the Episcopal Church. For the last fourteen, until last June, I was warden of St. Stephen's College and Professor of Religion in Columbia University. I resigned because the pressure of the Zeitgeist toward mediocrity and fuzzy-mindedness in colleges seemed too strong to be resisted. I am now a canon of St. John's Cathedral, Providence, and go about preaching and teaching pretty much all over the map. I might be a Socialist if I believed in the competence of the average man; but I don't. Many of my friends call me a Fascist. As a matter of fact, I don't believe much in social schemes at all. Bolshevism seems especially stupid to me, the result of oversimplification of man's problem. And finally, I am an Anglo-Catholic."

Roy S. Durstine was born in North Dakota when that State was still part of Dakota Territory. He went to Lawrenceville and Princeton and started out in the world as a reporter on The New York Sun. He left that paper in 1912 to do publicity for Theodore Roosevelt's Bull Moose campaign—a high-road which led him directly into advertising. In 1919 he and two other young men whom he had met in war work—Bruce Barton and Alex F. Osborn—organized the firm which in 1928 was to merge and become the firm of Batten, Barton, Durstine, and Osborn. Mr. Durstine is vice-president and general manager. He is the author of two books, Making Advertisements and This Advertising Business, and a third, Red Thunder, will be published late this spring. Both his book and "Moscow Zigzags" were written after a recent visit to Russia.

'Once upon a time' land

If you like a good tale, stop at a cabin in Ireland and get chatting with some of the folk there. That Celtic cross in the picture, for instance—get someone to tell you about that. It's a relic of the blood-and-thunder times when the early Irish Christians fought the pirates from the North. And there are older stories than that, stories going right back to the twilight of history. But you can't live in the past all the time, and when you want to come back to 1934 you'll always find it close at hand. Plenty of fine big hotels with European hospitality at its most bountiful; magnificent golf courses; excellent shooting; fishing in all parts of the Island.
